b)	Sumitra and Sanjay were childhood friend in the native village. Though they belonged to different castes, there developed an understanding between the two that once Sanjay got a job in the city, they would get married. Based on this understanding, they cohabited with each other several times. However, when Sanjay moved to Chandigarh and got a good job, he fell in love with one of his female colleagues. Soon thereafter Sanjay started avoiding Sumitra and finally refused to marry her. Shocked by the change in Sanjay’s attitude towards her, Sumitra files a criminal complaint alleging that Sanjay a number of, times had raped her. Sanjay pleads that the sexual relationship was with the consent of Sumitra and, therefore, he has committed no offence. Based on your judicial opinion decide in the light of recent amendments under the relevant provisions of the Indian Penal Code.
